- Distortion
- Repair Windows with Welders Lag

A one stop source for all your windows needs and problems!

Did you know that the water from your hose or sprinklers can leave behind mineral deposits that can cause staining and streaking on your windows?

This is called calcium buildup.

Don't worry! We can remove that no problem, no matter how advanced the corrosion might be.

WHY DOES CALCIUM BUILDUP END UP ON GLASS?

Hard water stains are nothing but calcium and mineral deposits, which settle on the surface once the water evaporates. After the water dries up, what is left behind are white colored salt deposits of calcium and minerals. These stains leave a whitish mark on the glass surface, ruining its aesthetic beauty.

There are a few main stages when it comes to calcium build-up on your windows:

- Stage 1: This typically occurs after your window has been sprayed with water once or twice. When the water evaporated, small mineral deposits are left behind.
- Stage 2. Prolonged exposure to hard water can result in mineral deposit build-up. You may notice a thin, hazy film on your windows.
- Stage 3. At this stage, mineral etching has damaged your window surface, and mineral deposits will be impossible to remove via conventional cleaning methods. Clean D Windows has a machine made to remove this type of calcium buildup!

DOES YOUR PROPERTY HAVE UNWANTED GLASS PROBLEMS?

At the most, you will expect a glass repair to never exceed more than 30% of what a window would cost to replace.

HAVE SCRATCHES OR ACID ETCHING ON YOUR WINDOWS?

Don't you worry! We can fix that.

Clean D Window Cleaning will save you the money of replacing the whole window. After we are finished, you will never know there was a problem, and the windows will look brand new.
